The "most important open source project!"

"We applaud the many contributions from the community which have taken the openoffice.org project much further than we had anticipated so quickly. It is a testament to the thousands of contributors in the community who want to see an open, full featured office productivity suite available on many platforms and in more localizations than ever before. I wanted to personally congratulate all of you for your dedication and efforts to make openoffice.org a shining example of the benefits of open technologies, open file formats, and an open style of doing work."

Curtis Sasaki,VP Desktop Solutions, Sun Microsystems.

OpenOffice.org Conference

<welcome>
The First Worldwide OpenOffice.org Conference</welcome>

March 20 – 21, 2003
University of Hamburg

OpenOffice.org Conference

UHH · Universität Hamburg

Sun microsystems

OASIS

www EdOsNet org · Educational Opensource Network

.riessintegration

netBeans.ORG